A story has been for some time going the rounds of the press in regard to a relative of Lord Byron, who, it is said, is working as a journeyman blacksmith. Different versions of the story have been given, but the Philadelphia Inquirer claims the following as the true version, which proves the Baron Wentworth to be as bad a mechanic as he is a Lord: is a Lord: "When we saw Lord Ockham, now Baron

An American Circus Company in Trouble | The True Version of the Byronic Blacks | Distinguished Foreign Travelers in Amerin Scotland-A Riot about a Mule Ride

In Scotland—A Riot about a Mule Ride.
Howe and Cushing's American Circus visited Dumfries on Monday, and gave two exhibitions in a large marquee on the Dock Park. At the evening exhibition something like a riot arose out of the refusal by the manager to pay a sovereign to any one who should ride a mule three times round the ring without being thrown off. A lad named William Quin, who is in the employment of Mr. William Teenan, horse dealer, Dumfriea, undertook the feat, and insisted that he had ridden the mule three times round the ring and kept his seat, not withstanding that the reins had his seat, notwithstanding that the reins had been cut by one of the circus people, and everything had been done to prevent his succeeding in the trial; the manager, on the other hand, averred that Quin had not rid-den in jockey fashion, had nearly choked the animal by clutching it round the neck, and had only ridden round the ring twice, a por-tion of the averteers having interfered tion of the spectators having interfered.

Quin's claims were loudly backed by a large number of the audience, and a mighty uproar was the result, in which some of the benches were smashed. Quin stuck to the mule, and proceeded to take it away home with him, followed by an immense crowd, cheering and yelling in a state of great ex-citement, and evidently arxious to ascertain the whereabouts of the manager, who had left the circus for his lodgings. Baffled, and left the circus for his lodgings. Baffied, and unsuccessful in their search, a portion of the crowd went back to fhe circus, seized one of the carriages, and threw it into the Nith, at the foot of the dock, from which, however, it was soon after recovered, only slightly damaged. It was rumored at one time that the indignation of the mob, at what they considered the sharp practice of the Yankees, had led them to tear down a part of the marques, but this is not true. part of the marquee, but this is not true.
The Superintendent of Police was obliged to take steps for quelling the disturbance. The money was ultimately paid to Quin, the mule restored, and the streets soon resumed their wonted quiet. At the last visit of this circus to Dumfries, a similar occurrence took place, the lad Quin on that occasionalso claimed to have won the money, which he did not get. This, no doubt, on the present occasion, gave additional energy to the remonstrances of EXTENSIVE GAMING IN PARIS-The Wholeale Swindles by Lorettes.—Clandestine gam-ling-houses, writes the Paris correspondent of the New Orleans Picagune, are as thick as cases in the neighborhood of the boule-vards and Notre Dame de Lorette; and if the vards and Notre Dame de Lorette; and if the swindling be not excessive, and students, shop-boys and clerks be kept out, the police wink at their existence. Every lorette has a card-table spread every night, and the largest part of their income grows on green baize; when they become too old to charm players there by their personal attractions, they secure young but inexperienced beauties, and teach them how to catch and how to pick pigeons, the feathers being shared between them. The most fortunate lorettes receive $20,000 every winter from their gaming-tables. Efforts are made every winter to induce the Government to allow public gambling-houses to be opened where no Frenchman would be admitted, unless he proved himself to be a man of independent fortune and a gentleman; foreigners would be admitted upon the presentation of their tongue; if it could not say Shibboleth, they would be admitted.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION OF A LOCOMOTIVE-BOILER - Three Men Killed and Fourteen Cars Wrecked .- A telegram from Syracuse.

Mo., to the St. Louis Republican, says: The freight-train going down met with an accident about half-past twelve o'clock to-day (Tuesday, the 2d inst). The boiler of the Pacific No. 3 exploded with terrible force, blowing the fireman forty yards into a corn-field and killing him instantly. The engineer was taken out of the wreck horrimangled, and lived only a few hours. ess, who had a large lot of stock for the Jefferson Fair, was badly injured, and a young man in his employ can not possibly survive. Fourteen cattle-cars were wrecked and piled indiscriminately upon each other. The track was torn up forty yards, and several fine bulls and other stock were killed.

REMARKABLE INCREASED VALUE OF AN AR The increased value of Decamps pictures, says a Paris correspondent, is something wonderful. I have mentioned the "Turkish Patrol;" his "Battle of the Cimbri" he sold to Etienne Arago for $800, when last sold at auction, it fetched $10,200; his "Joseph sold by his Brethren" he parted with for $400, when last sold at auction, it fetched $10,200; his "Joseph sold by his Brethren" he parted with for $400, when last sold at auction, it fetched $7,000; a drawing of "Crossing the Ford." which he sold of "Crossing the Ford," which he sold $120, when last sold at auction, fetched $3,200. Decemps was a man of the simplest tastes; he lived in retirement, working hard and flying the pleasures of society. He spent his evenings among a limited circle of friends whose tastes were as modest as his own, and they used to meet, when he was in Paris, at a pretty cafe in the Faubourg St.

THE EXTENT OF BANERUPTCY IN ENGLAND.
A list has been published of the number of bankrupts in the great towns of England, and we find from this document that, while 572 have occurred in London and its neighborhood, forty-two have taken place in Livery and thirty steply in Manchester, seventy borhood, forty-two have taken place in Liv-erpool, thirty-eight in Manchester, seventy in Leeds, sixty-six in Bristol, thirty-one in Exeter, and twenty-three in Newcastle. It appears from this return that the bankrupt rate has been highest in Birmingham, rela-tively, where the number has swelled to 122. This return also shows that bank-maley is increasing for while the average ruptcy is increasing; for, while the average is something more than 1,000 per annum, in the first eight months of the present year the number has been 764, which is at the rate of PECULIAR CHARACTER OF THEODORE PARkus a Stodies.—One of Theodore Parker's bills, made out in April, 1853, has been exhibited to the editors of the Boston Alda by the Managers of the Massachusetts Bible Society. It indicates the range of Mr. Parker's studies, comprising one Bohemian Bible, one each of the Catalonia, Tartar, Wendish, Wallachia, Lapponese Testaments, and one Sorenele Matthew.

SINGULAR POLITICAL WAGER.-A WAGER OF a pair of boots has been made in Lynn, Mass, on the result of the State election in Penn-sylvania—a condition of the bet being that the boots shall be delivered on one of the public squares in Lynn, where, after the delivery, the loser shall present the most assailable part of his person to be booted by the winner, by way of penalty for the folly of making such a bet.

Lownes Vergalers: Free.—The Licensed Victualiers of London had a fets recently at the Crystal Palace in aid of their fund. The sight that attracted most attention was the performance of a M. The Condition of Slavery in Massachuserts.—Though slavery existed in Massachusetts for a century and a half after the first settlement, yet, no person was ever born into legal slavery in Massachusetts. The conditions of bondage were thus expressed in the first statutes of the colony: There shall never be any bond-slavery, villange or captivity among us, unless it be lawful captives taken in just wars, and such strangers as willingly sell themselves or are sold to us. Notwithstanding the increased fucilities for crossing the Atlantic incident to the invention of steamboats, says the Boston Transcript, there are not so many emisent persons from Europe in the United States this year, when the Prince of Wales is visiting America, as there were more than sixty years ago, when his grandfather, the Duke of Kent, was here. At that time, the following-named prominent persons were in this country: Mr. Alexander Baring, afterward Lord Ashburton; Louis Phillippe, afterward King of France; the Duke de Montpensier, and the Duke de Beaujolois, younger brothers of Louis Phillippe; Viscount Noels, brother-in-law to Lafayette, and Dr. Bollman, a German friend of the Marquis; Volney, the celebrated French writer: John man, a German friend of the Marquis; Volney, the celebrated French writer; John

A VISIT TO THE STUDIO OF FREEE THE FRENCH PAINTER .- A late number of the Crayon contains a Paris letter, from which we extract:

I went down to Ecouen, the other day, to visit Ed. Frere file, E.F. pere being out o town. And such a treat! We found young town. And such a treat! We found young Frere at home, who "showed up" his father's studio. It is a large, square room, hung with old tapestry, and completely filled with little out-door and in-door studies from nature. (How I did covet some of them! but he never parts with them). There was a very large square rug on the middle of the floor, on which stood five or six easels, supporting pictures; by kimeal and porting pictures in progress, by himself and E. P. file. These were in almost every stage of progress, and it was interesting to me to see his manner of working. So careful! It takes him nearly two days to make the drawing for one of those small works on the panel from the original sketch; every fold in the drapery is modeled up as carefully as the features, when he then carries his easel to the cottage, or wherever else it may be, and finishes up every thing directly from the object. And a hard-worker he is—at it early in the morning and late in the after-noon. He has well earned his "decoration."

GIYY.—The population of the "Eternal City" is about 175,000, divided into fifty-four parishes, with 1,280 priests, 2,092 monks and members of religious orders 1,698 nuns, and 537 ecclesiastical pupils. Exclusive of Jews, the number of inhabitants not acknowledg-ing the Roman Church, is 412. There are seventy Cardinals composing the Sacred Col-lege, six of whom are bishops, fifty priests, and fourteen descons. The oldest Cardinal and fourteen descons. The oldest Cardinal is eighty-four, the youngest forty-two. Fifty-four are Italians, sixteen foreigners. Six of the foreign Cardinals are of France, three of Austria, two of Spain, two of Portugal, one of Belgium, one of England, and one of Prussia. Twenty-seven Cardinals (Italians), reside in Rome, and assist the Pope in the spiritual government of his Church, and in the temporal government of the Poptified the temporal government of the Pontifical States. The civil list of Rome costs about 600,000. The salaries of the highest officers do not exceed $3,000. There are more free public schools in Rome, in proportion to population, than in New York, and the taxes are less than in that State or in England or France.

PAUL MORPHY'S SINGULAR POWER OF CALCULATION.—There is said to be no calculation in Morphy's mind, but that he makes them by an intuition. If he calculates, he does it after his move is made, and if he his adversary. In answer to a question put to him, he replied that the first impression upon his mind after his adversary's move was made, almost always proved correct, and that he played more by a sort of inspiration than from intellect. So true is this, that he is totally incapable of imparting the secret of his power to another person. This power applies to other matters than chessplaying. Mr. Morphy was asked how many letters were in the name of George Washington, and without a moment's hesitation or ton, and without a moment's hesitation or calculation, the correct answer, "sixteen" was given. In reply to a question, Mr. Morphy said that he saw the combination by

They are not the man-eating species, and their capture is too much a matter-of-fact operation to tempt a stranger more than once or twice as a variety.
